“The movement this year will be to keep the epidemic of the cold and influenza which has lately passed over the country the necessity of keeping things cleaned up and free from dirt and filth, is especially urgent.

Miss Erna M. Volert and Walter P. Whitlock, both popular young people of this city, were married at the West Side Lutheran church last Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Thurov of that congregation performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Misses Ella and Rhea Vullert, while the groomsmen were Erwin Whitlock and Arthur Knut. The bride was dressed very prettily, gowned in white satin with a veil and carried sweet pons. The bridesmaid wore a shower bouquet of yellow roses and dressed in pale pink crop de chino and white georgette cape, gowns, and shoes. The bridesmaid carried a bouquet of yellow roses and carnations. The bridesmaids wore corsage bouquets of roses and sweet pons.

Following the ceremony the young people went to the home of the bride's parents where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served. The bride played on which day many

SOIL ASS'N. WOULD INCLUDE ENTIRE CO.

The indications now are that the short independent club that was recently organized in this city will fit the course of a short time extend pretty generally over Wood County and gradually take in other sections.

The movement is one in which the business men of the county are also beginning to take an active interest. There are two reasons for this.

One is the fact that many of the business men own either a farm or tracts of land which will one day be farins, and they are anxious to see that they are managed in the most profitable as possible, and that the reason is because the business men have come to a realization that if the farmers are prosperous, they themselves will enjoy a like condition.

Soil improvement is a matter that has been neglected in the past probably for the reason that the virgin soil of Wisconsin was quite productive and there was plenty of it, and when a piece of land had been worn out the custom has been to sell it and abandon it entirely and start the cultivation of another tract. But during the past ten years land has increased in value very materially, and land taxes have become higher, with the result that an effort is now being made to secure a greater production from each acre than ever before, and it is with this end in view that soil clubs are being of great interest can be hoped that enough interest can be developed in the clubs and the membership be large enough so that after they are well under way the members will be able to have samples of their soil analyzed in such a manner that they will be immediately just what the instruments it is so important and thus be able to supply the missing elements and produce a profitable crop.

In the soil club recently organized in this city there are thirty-five vice presidents scattered pretty well over the county, and it is expected that a number of the officers will be held in this city in the near future where matters of interest may be discussed.

Taken altogether, the formation of soil clubs means that it will

MORE PROTECTION FOR WORKINGMEN

Assembly Votes for Free Employment Offices.

TO REDUCE ACCIDENT RATE

Joint Committee on Finance Recommends Passage of Bill Increasing Appropriation of Industrial Commission $100,000.

Madison.—A far greater protection for Wisconsin workingmen was assured by the Wisconsin legislature when the assembly gave final concurrence to the bill continuing free employment offices of the state and the joint committee on finance recommended for passage the bill increasing the appropriation of the state industrial commission $100,000 annually, so that the accident rate in the state may be reduced.

By a vote of 61 to 8 the house passed the finance committee bill appropriating $22,000 for a continuance of the free employment offices of the state and the governor Philipp will sign the measure.

The Wisconsin industrial commission will get a $100,000 additional appropriation. The need of additional assistance and a larger appropriation to carry on the work of the state industrial commission was emphasized by Chairman George P. Humbrecht in appearing before the joint finance committee of the legislature. The public affairs board has recommended an additional appropriation to the amount expended during the last biennium.

"This sum is not sufficient to adequately carry on the work," said Commissioner Humbrecht. "We were unable to carry forward the minimum wage work, although complaints were filed, because of a lack of funds."

"There are many things which the commission should do. The law requires us to have boilers of the state inspected annually. The appropriation allows for one inspector and, working half of the time, he can inspect one-fourth of the boilers of the state," Mr. Humbrecht pointed out additional shortcomings of the present commission for lack of funds. He said that every employee of the commission was working hard to render the best service. Referring to the accidents in the state, he said that it was his opinion that with an additional appropriation of $100,000 the accident rate could be reduced 5 to 10 per cent.

Under suspension of the rules, the senate put on final passage the Skogmo bill amending the compensation act to give employees the right to Christian Science treatment if they are of that faith.

The Kandutsch red flag bill was recalled from the executive office for the purpose of an amendment. In its present form it would probably have been voted unless recalled. A new bill was offered by Assemblyman Hugo Kandutsch, prohibiting any revolutionary flag.

The original red flag bill went through the legislature by practically only the Socialists in opposition. It prohibited the use of the red flag. When it reached the executive office and was subjected to legal scrutiny it was discovered that the bill was so full of holes that it could not be signed.

The new bill offered to take the place of the original Kandutsch bill provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to display or exhibit at any meeting, gathering or parade, public or private, any flag, banner or emblem symbolizing, or intended by the person or persons displaying or exhibiting the same, to symbolize or purpose to overthrow by force, or violence, or by physical injury to personal property, or by the general cessation of industry, the government of the state of Wisconsin, or all government."

Persons convicted shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100, or, in default thereof, imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed 30 days, the measure prescribes.

After an hour of debate the assembly, by a vote of 75 to 11, refused to kill the Axel Johnson bill exempting farmers from the anti-trust law of the state. The bill was then passed by a vote of 75 to 12. There is at present a law on the statute books curbing trusts and monopolies. The Johnson bill provides that nothing therein shall be construed to affect associations, corporate or otherwise, of farmers, gardeners or fruitmen, including live stock farmers and fruit growers engaged in making collective sales or marketing for its members or shareholders of farm, orchard or dairy products produced by its members or shareholders.

Would Repeal Commission Law.

Deciding that the railroad commission has outlived its usefulness to the public, Assemblyman Frank B. Metcalfe, Milwaukee, urged the repeal of the commission law before the transportation committee of the lower house. He said that state regulation had not worked out well in Milwaukee and thought that if the law were repealed Milwaukee would be able to grapple with her own problems. He said that the Milwaukee common council was in favor of the repeal of the present law.

Amend Sealer Measure.

The state affairs committee has amended the bill of Senator Bilgert to provide that the state sealer of weights and measures may remove any city or village sealer for incompetence, malfeasance or nonfeasance. The bill also requires quarterly instead of annual reports by city sealers. The original Bilgert bill provided no city sealer could be appointed without approval of the state sealer, and set a minimum salary of $500.

Would Prevent Misuse of Flag.

Enactment of a federal law to prevent general misuse and desecration of the American flag was advocated in a report to the twenty-eighth congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. John E. Hanna, state regent of Wisconsin, chairman of the flag committee, reported that the evil had increased greatly since the armistice and that while it was due largely to ignorance, state laws were so conflicting and so lax that a federal statute was needed to assure respect for the national emblem.

Soldier Bonus Problem.

A new bill embodying the ideas of some of the other measures, and some of the ideas suggested at the hearing, will be offered by the joint finance committee to cover the soldier bonus problem. A second reading of the bill before the committee to urge the passage of the measure. It was evident that the speakers favored a compromise of the Nye and Pullen bills, with some additional features that will bring a larger bonus to the private than that proposed in the Cunningham bill.

The joint committee on finance was unanimous that something should be done for the returned and returning soldiers, sailors and marines, and they will prepare a bill doing all within their power.

"The first problem that confronts the committee is to provide or immediate relief," says the official committee statement. "Assuming that a bill would be valid which taxed the people of the state for this purpose, the more serious question is whether the state has any power to raise the money by bond issue or otherwise, for immediate use."

"The committee is satisfied that it is a proper subject for federal legislation, but it is a condition and not a theory that confronts the committee, and regardless of who ought to do it, the committee wants to and intends to do all that it can."

"The committee will prepare a bill just as quickly as it can, but if it attempts to make undue haste there is danger that it will get a bill not well considered and which, therefore, will be of no value at all. It is a more difficult problem than people generally consider and the public may rest assured that the boys will get everything that it is possible for the state to grant."

"The minimum amount to be raised will apparently be $10,000,000. The committee is going to call in the best outside assistance, both financial and legal, they can get to help them."

Senator Cunningham told the committee that legislation of this kind was needed and "needed quick." He said that his bill would give the men three months' pay after the amount paid by the federal government as a bonus had been deducted. Senator Dird pointed out that in the case of a $30 a month private this would only mean that the private would get $30, while the soldier would receive a larger sum. Senator Anderson asked if Senator Cunningham favored a bond or a direct tax? He replied that he favored any plan that would get the money for the men.

"If the bonding proposition were not feasible you would favor the putting of the sum required in the next state tax," suggested Senator C. B. Bird. "But it in the state tax if you have to," declared Senator Cunningham, "but work out some scheme whereby this money can be obtained for the men quickly."

Senator Pullen declared that he believed the men would get a larger measure of justice under his bill. He declared that his measure provided for a $10 a month bonus, based on the number of months that a man had been in the service. He pointed out that under his plan the private would receive as much bonus as the officer, and he thought there should be no discrimination in that regard. Perhaps some compromise bill should be worked out, said Senator Pullen, but he thought that the educational benefits of the Nye bill would not extend to more than one-tenth of the soldiers.

"I think my bill will cost from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000," said Senator Pullen, "depending upon how soon these men are gotten out of the service."

Senator Nye explained the provisions of his bill for applying the S. A. T. C. plan for the education of soldiers in the higher institutions of learning in the state.

Market Bills to Be Fused.

The intertia committee market bill was reported to the assembly by the committee on agriculture, but without recommendation. The Equity society marketing bill was reported for indefinite postponement.

The committee has two other marketing bills pending. One is by T. W. Bartingale and the other by Herman Roethel, commonly known as the So-called bill. Neither bill has been formally introduced, although it is expected that the best features of all four bills will be fused and introduced as a substitute amendment to the intertia committee bill.

Should Pass on World League.

A plan to give the United States senate the views of the legislatures of the different states on the league of nations is proposed by Lieutenant Governor Dithmar, Baraboo. He suggests a resolution to be introduced in the Wisconsin legislature to carry out his idea. "The ideal way would be to let the people vote on the plan," declared Mr. Dithmar. "Since that cannot be carried out, the next best method would be to have the legislatures take the question up."

New Auto Light Law Is Urged.

A bill by Assemblyman John M. Sell, Milwaukee, provides that the beam ray from lamps on automobiles shall not exceed 60 candle power and, if a direct ray or light is desired, it must not, at 100 feet, rise over 42 inches above the level of the road. Otherwise, the upper part of the lens of such lamps shall be so constructed as to protect others from direct rays of the lens and may be made of ground glass, sand blast or have a hood projecting over the upper part of the lens.

Will Pay for Slaughtered Animals.

Farmers of the state will get increased compensation for animals slaughtered under the tuberculin test law if the bill, advanced in the house without opposition, is concurred in. For each animal condemned and then slaughtered, where federal cooperation is obtained in the payment of indemnity, the department of agriculture may, on behalf of the state, authorize the payment to the owner of a sum equal to the amount received for salvage after freight is deducted, plus that paid by the government.

Passes Otto Labor Measure.

No fight was made to defeat the Otto bill relating to the organization of labor unions and to the issuance of restraining orders and injunctions and procedure thereon and to limit the meaning of conspiracy in certain cases. It was passed by a vote of 63 to 4. Assemblymen Chiles, Ruka, Nola and Vaughan voting against the measure. "This was a bill recommended by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor and endorsed by the Madison Federation of Labor. It is practically similar to the federal legislation."

CAPITAL WOMEN TO AID VICTORY LOAN

HARD AT WORK ON THEIR PLANS FOR PUTTING IT THROUGH IN THE DISTRICT.

ALL THEIR CLUBS ARE BUSY

Generous Rivalry in the Race for Presenting the Most Attractive Novelties in the Campaign and Getting Best Results.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—The women of Washington are hard at the preliminary work necessary to complete arrangements for the Victory loan drive and for putting it through to a successful end in the District of Columbia.

The wife of the president of the United States has consented to serve as honorary chairman of the Washington Women's Liberty Loan committee. Mrs. Wesley M. Storer will be the committee's chief executive officer, directing dozens of meetings of the women of the district already have been held with a view to arousing warm enthusiasm and to the forming of plans for that simplicity of organization which will make for the most effective work.

Mrs. Charles W. Hamlin, wife of a member of the federal reserve board, and Mrs. Hiram Bland, wife of the governor of New Mexico, are honorary chairmen of two of the greater district committees charged with the work of expediting preparations for the loan and for making the campaign a success.

It was feared by some of the women in Washington that the enthusiasm in connection with war loan drives might be on the wane because so much energy was expended during previous campaigns. Such fears have proved to be without foundation. All the women's clubs of the District of Columbia have responded splendidly to the appeals of Mrs. Storer.

Women's Clubs All Helping.

Every club of women in the District of Columbia has named a chairman who will conduct the loan activities of the club in connection with the work of the greater district committee. Every woman's club in the city of Washington and every organization of whatever kind with which women are connected is hopeful that it will outdo all other clubs in effort and in results. Where there is such rivalry as this in a good cause, results of a high order always have been obtained.

The women can be trusted to propose and to put into effect novel and attractive means for arousing the interest of their sisters and to find the readiest means to show them that the proper patriotic place to put money is in the strong boxes of Uncle Sam who will pay interest thereon and give assurance that the treasure is safer than any other strong box of the country.

In the Liberty loan drives of the past in Washington the women gave the citizens of the city something to think about. For a considerable time parts of the capital looked as if a patriotic carnival were in progress. The strong point of the endeavor of the women to raise funds for Uncle Sam has been that they have never for one moment allowed any person to think that he or she was being begged for a contribution. The fact that the purchase of Liberty loan bonds was a good investment always was impressed upon the people, but with it there was always the companion statement that a man who was involved in only a duty in a broader sense to the country, but a duty to the fathers, sons and brothers who had gone across the sea to bear the burden of the fighting.

Novelties to Be Expected.

It is fully expected that before the Victory loan drive is ended in the District of Columbia the women of the city again will have given its citizens some strikingly novel things to look on and to think about. As yet just what these things are to be no one knows, but there are women all over this town today thinking on plans to make the Liberty loan drive an attractive, which means plans to hold not only the passing but the continuing attention of men, women and children who need only a little stimulation to induce them to make Uncle Sam their debtor while doing him a proper service.

The existence in this town of so many organizations of women helps the cause of the Liberty loan, for it is much easier to reach women in their groups together as they do in the clubs than singly. A meeting at a club or at the outside once a month, to discuss means whereby they can help those who need help and to think of and to talk of the greater affairs of the nation.

Plenty of Volunteers.

The war department has asked for 50,000 United States volunteers to be used as replacement troops for the army of occupation in Germany and on station in France and elsewhere. The war department is now looking for volunteers has been instant. Naturally enough, many of the soldiers of the army now in Germany are anxious to come home. In the main part General Dickman's army of occupation is composed of veterans of the firing line in France. They have done their duty in a field of imminent danger, and naturally those of them who have close family ties, and some of them.

Opium.

Opium is the dried juice of the white poppy, a flower that grows in many parts of Asia. A few days after the flowers have fallen off the plants men go through the fields in the afternoon and make little cuts in the poppy heads, and these cut a milky juice oozes, which is turned into a brown, sticky paste. Every morning the men go through the fields again and scrape off this paste, which they put into jars. Later on it is made into half-pound balls and then packed for shipment.

Mineral Lake.

A lake near Biggar, Saskatchewan, has been found to be saturated with sodium sulphate, and the deposits under the lake and alongside the edge to be nearly 97 per cent pure sulphate. The mineral is used extensively in the manufacture of sulphuric acid, in photography and other industrial purposes.

others also, are anxious to return to the United States.

There are hundreds of thousands of young men in this country who went through the training camps on this side and who were bitterly disappointed because they were not given an opportunity to serve abroad. It will not take long to find 50,000 anxious ones, ready to sail the seas to replace their homelick brothers on the other side. The soldier who goes abroad, even in this day when the armistice is in force, gets plenty of experience and plenty of opportunities to see things worth while.

Many Are Glad to Return to Europe. In New York it is said that American veterans of Chateau Thierry, the Argonne and other battlefields who only a few weeks ago accepted their army discharges are daily re-enlisting in considerable numbers. This goes to show that a good many of the men who saw service abroad and perhaps became homelick for America, are now homelick for the other side and wish to go back.

One of the interesting features of the re-enlisting process is the answers which some of the men make to questions which are put to them. It is said that over 30 per cent of the men who want to go back into the army say they desire service because it gives them a chance at vocational education.

A great number of the men who applied for re-enlistment said, "the army makes a man of you." All of this speaks well for the service as a manhood builder, and army authorities in Washington probably will make the most of the praise which has come to the service from the lips of the men who have served and who want to serve again.

Cummings and Hays Busy.

Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, have their work cut out for them along campaigning lines for the next year, plus the odd months which will bring them up to national convention time.

The first work of these two unquestionably amiable gentlemen is one of harmonizing. Mr. Hays has been in Washington on a quite recent visit, and Mr. Cummings also is bending his efforts along a parallel line. It is needless to say that Mr. Hays is not trying to bring about harmony within the Democratic ranks, nor is Mr. Cummings trying to do a like work for the Republicans.

Each one of these chairmen probably hopes in his heart that the efforts of the other to bring harmony will be a dismal failure, and this hope, of course, is not felt by mere meanness of spirit, but in the heart desire of each chairman that his party will be helped toward the goal of success by lack of sweetness, light and concord in the ranks of the other party.

There is trouble in the ranks of both of these great parties today as they are represented in the halls of congress. Just prior to the reconvening of congress in special session on the date set to put the members of congress of both parties in the house will meet in caucus, the majority either to sanction or to veto the slate of officials written at a previous caucus, and the other party to choose its minority floor leader and the other officials to which the minority is entitled.

Fuss Over Steering Committee.

Recently the Republicans in the house have had trouble because a steering committee was appointed with only a small membership which was not entirely to the liking of a minority of the party members. The steering committee is the body which fixes on legislative policies, and legislative endeavor as outlined in the form of bills. It is an all powerful organ of the house, and it is not only the steering committee of the house, but the steering committee of the party members in its various fields of thought. So it is that an endeavor is to be made to "enlarge and liberalize" the committee when the Republicans of the house meet in caucus.

Mr. Hays, it is said, favors an enlargement of the steering committee to meet the wishes of the Republicans who have declared that the membership in that body represents only one element in the party. When the caucus is held it finally will be determined whether the influence of the Republican national chairman has been sufficient to bring about the result desired by a large minority of the Republicans and with it the harmony which is necessary for a party which is just about to enter on a strenuous political campaign.

Not so much has been made public about Mr. Cummings' work along harmonizing lines, but it is known that he desires above all things that the gathering together in the next house shall not appear to be either on matters of legislative or on what may be called personal matters. There is some opposition among the Democrats in the house to the selection of Champ Clark as floor leader of the minority. Just how strong or how numerous the opponents of Mr. Clark are is not yet definitely known, and it also is a little difficult to find out on what ground the charge of his being biased, but in the charge of his opponents is that he has not been entirely in accord with the policies of the present administration.

PRESIDENT EBBETS OF BROOKLYN DODGERS BELIEVES HIS TEAM HAS CHANCE FOR FLAG

Manager Robinson, President Ebbets and Pitcher Cadore.

President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club has such high hopes of his Dodgers for this season that he is going to give them his closest personal attention. He went with them to the training camp at Jacksonville. Mr. Ebbets is particularly proud of his pitching staff and of its builds his chief hopes.

Sweet on His Pitchers. In Cadore, Marquard, Pfeffer, Cheney, Sherrod Smith, Marmar, Grimes, Mitchell and Hettman he thinks he has a list that outclasses anything in the National league, and he protests strongly at the assumptions that the Chicago Cubs, rated highest in pitching material, have anything on his Dodgers.

Smith and Mitchell still are in France, but Ebbets hopes that they will report to Uncle Robby before the pennant race is a month old. Grimes led the Brooklyn pitchers last season, with 19 victories and nine defeats, only four men—Vaughn, Tyler, Cooper and Douglas—excelling him in effectiveness.

Expected to Win.

Pfeffer, who was in the navy all season, is figured to win many games, with Leon Cadore in the same class. Marquard and Cheney, the veterans, are expected to show improvement. Marmar, who has accomplished little or nothing for three years, is a mystery, but Ebbets refuses to lose faith in him. The return of Sherrod Smith, a sterling left-hander, will be the signal for much rejoicing at Ebbets field.

WHAT ABOUT ROGERS HORNSBY THIS YEAR?

Fans Asking Each Other If He Will Step Up to Old Gait.

Cardinal Shortstop Given Big Increase in Salary by Jack Hendricks Fell Into Slump—Rickey Expected to Get Results.

What about Rogers Hornsby in the 1919 campaign in the National league? National league fans are asking each other whether Rogers will step up to his real gait this coming season or whether he will continue in the slump he suffered last season.

Hornsby joined the Cardinals in 1915, but did not receive very much of a chance to get going. But in 1916 he stepped right out in front. He was the very life of the attack and defense of the team. His general work at shortstop and his batting made him the most talked of player in the circuit, if not in the majors.

The next season he let out another notch and again turned up the league. He batted .327 and finished second to

Rogers Hornsby.

Eddie Roush of the Cincinnati Reds, who pulled down the leading title. When the 1918 season started scribbles asked, "Where will Hornsby stop?" Rog asked for a big increase in salary and got it. Jack Hendricks took hold of the team that spring. It never will be known exactly whether it was the big pay and publicity of two seasons or his inability to get along with Jack Hendricks that caused Rogers to slump.

Now Hornsby will play under Branch Rickey this coming season. Rickey and Hornsby will get along. Rickey is the kind of a manager who can talk to the youngster and get results. If Hornsby hits his old stride again next summer—if he takes the lead in batting and lifted work most fans will blame his year's lapse on Jack Hendricks. Hendricks, being out of the big league again, will not worry over the verdict. Jack undoubtedly has his own views, which are enough for him.

It will be interesting to watch the Cardinal star.

MORE PROTECTION FOR WORKINGMEN

Assembly Votes for Free Employment Offices.

TO REDUCE ACCIDENT RATE

Joint Committee on Finance Recommends Passage of Bill Increasing Appropriation of Industrial Commission $100,000.

Madison.—A far greater protection for Wisconsin workingmen was assured by the Wisconsin legislature when the assembly gave final concurrence to the bill continuing free employment offices of the state and the joint committee on finance recommended for passage the bill increasing the appropriation of the state industrial commission $100,000 annually, so that the accident rate in the state may be reduced.

By a vote of 61 to 8 the house passed the finance committee bill appropriating $22,000 for a continuance of the free employment offices in the state until July 1. Governor Philipp will sign the measure.

The Wisconsin industrial commission will get a $100,000 additional appropriation. The need of additional assistance and a larger appropriation to carry on the work of the state industrial commission was emphasized by Chairman George P. Humberich in appearing before the joint finance committee of the legislature. The public affairs board has recommended an appropriation equal to the amount expended during the past biennium.

"This sum is not sufficient to adequately carry on the work," said Commissioner Humberich. "We were unable to carry forward the minimum wage work, although complaints were filed, because of a lack of funds."

"There are many things which the commission should do. The law requires us to have holders of the state inspected annually. The appropriation allows for one inspector and, working here all of the time, he can inspect one-fourth of the holders of the state."

Mr. Humberich pointed out additional shortcomings of the present commission for lack of funds. He said that every employee of the commission was working hard to render the best service. Referring to the accidents in the state, Mr. Humberich said that it was his opinion that with an additional appropriation of $100,000 the accident rate could be reduced 5 to 10 per cent.

Under suspension of the rules, the senate put on final passage the Skogmo bill amending the compensation act to give employees the right to Christian Science treatment if they are of that faith.

The Kandutsch red flag bill was recalled from the executive office for the purpose of an amendment. In its present form it would probably have been vetoed unless recalled. A new bill was offered by Assemblyman Hugo Kandutsch, prohibiting any revolutionary flag.

The original red flag bill went through the legislature with practically only the Socialists in opposition. It prohibited the use of the red flag. When it reached the executive office and was subjected to legal scrutiny it was discovered that the bill was so full of holes that it could not be signed.

The new bill offered to take the place of the original Kandutsch bill provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to display or exhibit at any meeting, gathering or parade, publicly or privately, any flag, banner or emblem symbolizing, or intended by the person or persons displaying or exhibiting the same, to symbolize a purpose to overthrow by force, or violence, or by physical injury to personal property, or by the general cessation of industry, the government of the state of Wisconsin, or any government."

Persons convicted shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100, or, in default thereof, imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed 30 days, the measure prescribes.

After an hour of debate the assembly, by a vote of 75 to 11, refused to kill the Axel Johnson bill exempting farmers from the anti-trust law of the state. The bill was then passed by a vote of 75 to 12. There is at present a law on the statute books curbing trusts and monopolies. The Johnson bill provides that nothing therein shall be construed to affect associations, corporate or otherwise, of farmers, gardeners or dairymen, including live stock farmers and fruit growers engaged in making collective sales or marketing for their members or shareholders of farm, orchard or dairy products produced by its members or shareholders.

Would Repeal Commission Law.

Declaring that the railroad commission has outlived its usefulness to the public, Assemblyman Frank B. Metcalfe, Milwaukee, urged the repeal of the commission law before the transportation committee of the lower house. He said that state regulation had not worked out well in Milwaukee and thought that if the law were repealed Milwaukee would be able to grapple with her own problems. He said that the Milwaukee common council was in favor of the repeal of the present law.

Amend Sealer Measure.

The state sealer committee has amended the bill of Senator Hiltgen to provide that the state sealer of weights and measures may remove any city or village sealer for incompetence, malfeasance or nonfeasance, but must file written notice of charges. The bill also requires quarterly instead of annual reports by city sealers. The original Hiltgen bill provided no city sealer could be appointed without approval of the state sealer, and set a minimum salary of $500.

Would Prevent Misuse of Flag.

Enactment of a federal law to prevent general misuse and desecration of the American flag was advocated in a report to the twenty-eighth congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. E. J. Hume, state regent of Wisconsin, chairman of the flag committee, reported that the evil had increased greatly since the armistice and that while it was due largely to ignorance, state laws were so conflicting and so lax that a federal statute was needed to assure respect for the national emblem.

Soldier Bonus Problem.

A new bill embodying the ideas of some of the other measures, and some of the ideas suggested at the hearing, will be offered by the joint finance committee to cover the soldier bonus proposition. A score of people appeared before the committee to urge the passage of the measure. It was evident that the speakers favored a compromise of the Nye and Pullen bills, with some additional features that will bring a larger bonus to the veterans than that proposed in the Cunningham bill.

The joint committee on finance was unanimous that something should be done for the returned and returning soldiers, sailors and marines, and they will prepare a bill doing all within their power.

"The first problem that confronts the committee is to provide for immediate relief," says the official committee statement. "Assuming that a bill would be valid which taxed the people of the state for this purpose, the more serious question is whether the state has any power to raise the money by bond issue or otherwise, for immediate use."

"The committee is satisfied that it is a proper subject for federal legislation, but it is a condition and not a theory that confronts the committee, and regardless of who ought to do it, the committee wants to and intends to do all that it can."

"The committee will prepare a bill just as quickly as it can, but if it attempts to make undue haste there is danger that it will get a bill not well considered and which, therefore, will be of no value at all. It is a most difficult problem that people generally consider and the public may rest assured that the boys will get everything that it is possible for the state to grant."

"The minimum amount to be raised will be approximately $10,000,000. The committee is going to call in the best outside assistance, both financial and legal, they can get to help them."

Senator Cunningham told the committee that legislation of this kind was needed and "needed quick." He said that his bill would give the men (even monthly) pay after the amount paid by the federal government as a bonus had been determined. Senator Hiltgen pointed out that in the case of a $30 a month private this would only mean that the private would receive a larger sum. Senator Anderson asked if Senator Cunningham favored a bond or a direct tax? He replied that he favored any plan that would get the money for the men.

"If the handling proposition were not feasible you would favor the putting of the sum required in the next state tax," suggested Senator C. B. Bird. "But it is in the state tax if you have to," declared Senator Cunningham, "but work out some scheme whereby this money can be obtained for the men quickly."

Senator Pullen declared that he believed the men would get a larger measure of justice under his bill. He declared that his measure provided for a $10 a month bonus, based on the number of months that a man had been in the service. He pointed out that under his plan the private would receive as much bonus as the officer, and he thought there should be no discrimination in that regard. He thought some compromise bill should be worked out, said Senator Pullen, but he thought that the educational benefits of the Nye bill would not extend to more than one-fourth of the soldiers.

"I think my bill will cost from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000," said Senator Pullen, "depending upon how soon these men are gotten out of the service."

Senator Nye explained the provisions of his bill for applying the S. A. T. C. plan for the education of soldiers in the higher institutions of learning in the state.

Market Bills to Be Fused.

The internal commodity market bill was reported to the assembly by the committee on agriculture, but without recommendation. The Equity society marketing bill was reported for legislative postponement.

The committee has two other marketing bills pending. One is by T. W. Bartingale and the other by Herman Roethel, commonly known as the Socialist bill. Neither bill has been formally introduced.

The best features of all four bills will be fused and introduced as a substitute amendment to the interim committee bill.

Should Pass on World League.

A plan to give the United States senate the views of the legislature of the different states on the league of nations is proposed by Lieutenant Governor Dittmar, Baraboo. He suggests a resolution be introduced into the Wisconsin legislature to carry out his idea. "The ideal way would be to let the people vote on the plan," declared Mr. Dittmar. "Since that method was not carried out, the next best method would be to have the legislature take the question up."

New Auto Light Law Is Urged.

A bill by Assemblyman John M. Sell, Milwaukee, provides that the beam or ray from lamps on automobiles shall not exceed 60 candle power and, if a direct ray or light be desired, it must not, at 100 feet, rise over 42 inches above the level of the road. Otherwise, the upper part of the lens of such lamps shall be so constructed as to protect others from direct rays of the lens and may be made of ground glass, sand blast or have a hood projecting over the upper part of the lens.

Will Pay for Slaughtered Animals.

Farmers of the state will get increased compensation for animals slaughtered under the tuberculosis law if the bill, advanced in the house without opposition, is concurred in. For each animal condemned and ordered slaughtered, where federal cooperation is obtained in the payment of indemnity, the department of agriculture may, on behalf of the state, authorize the payment to the owner of a sum equal to the amount received for salvage after freight is deducted, plus that paid by the government.

Pass Otto Labor Measure.

No fight was made to defeat the Otto bill relating to the organization of labor unions and to the issuance of restraining orders and injunctions and procedure thereon and to limit the meaning of conspiracy in certain cases. It was passed by a vote of 60 to 4. Assemblymen Chislen, Ruika, Noll and Vaughan voting against the measure. This was a high endorsement by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor and endorsed by the Madison, Federation of Labor. It is practically similar to the federal legislation.

CAPITAL WOMEN TO AID VICTORY LOAN

HARD AT WORK ON THEIR PLANS FOR PUTTING IT THROUGH IN THE DISTRICT.

Washington.—The women of Washington are hard at the preliminary work necessary to complete arrangements for the Victory loan drive and for putting it through to a successful end in the District of Columbia.

The wife of the president of the United States has consented to serve as honorary chairman of the Washington Women's Liberty Loan committee. Mrs. Wesley M. Stoner will be the active chairman, and under her direction dozens of meetings of the women of the district already have been held with a view to arousing warm enthusiasm and to the forming of plans for that simplicity of organization which will make for the most effective work.

Mrs. Charles W. Hamilton, wife of a member of the federal reserve board, and Mrs. Thelma Bente Bente, daughter of James G. Bland, are honorary chairmen of two of the greater district committees charged with the work of expediting preparations for the loan and for making the campaign a success.

It was feared by some of the women in Washington that the enthusiasm in connection with war loan drives might be on the wane because so much energy was expended during previous campaigns. Such fears have proved to be without foundation. All the women's clubs of the District of Columbia have responded splendidly to the appeals of Mrs. Stoner.

Women's Clubs All Helping.

Every club of women in the District of Columbia has named a chairman who will conduct the loan activities of the club in connection with the work of the greater district committee. Every woman's club in the city of Washington and every organization of whatever kind with which women are connected is hopeful that it will outdo all other clubs in effort and in results. Where there is such rivalry as this in a good cause, results of a high order always have been obtained.

The women can be trusted to propose and to put into effect novel and attractive means for arousing the interest of their sisters and to find the readiest means to show them that the proper patriotic place to put money is in the strong boxes of Uncle Sam who will pay interest thereon and give assurance that the treasure is safer than any other strong box of the country.

In the Liberty loan drives of the past in Washington, the women gave the citizens of the city something to think about. For a considerable time parts of the capital looked as if a patriotic carnival were in progress. The strong point about this endeavor of the women to raise funds for Uncle Sam has been that they have never for one moment allowed any person to think that he or she was being begged for a contribution. The fact that the purchase of Liberty loan bonds was a good investment always was impressed upon the people, but with it there was always the companion statement that a duty was involved not only a duty to the country but a duty to the fathers, sons and brothers who had gone across the sea to bear the burden of the fighting.

Novelties to Be Expected.

It is fully expected that before the Victory loan drive is under way in the District of Columbia the women of the city again will have given their citizens some strikingly novel things to look on and to think about. As yet just what these things are to be no one knows, but there are women all over this town today thinking on plans to make the campaign amazingly attractive, which means plans to hold not only the passing but the continuing attention of men, women and children who need only a little stimulation to induce them to make Uncle Sam their debtor while doing him a proper service.

Plenty of Volunteers.

The existence in this town of so many organizations of women helps the cause of the Liberty loan. It is a great easier to reach women when they gather together as they do in the clubs in groups once a week, or at the outside once a month, to discuss matters whereby they can help those who need help and to think of and to talk of the greater affairs of the nation.

Many of the Army Now in Germany.

The war department has asked for 50,000 United States volunteers to be used as replacement troops for the army of occupation in Germany and on station in France and elsewhere abroad. The response to the plan for volunteers has been instant.

Naturally enough, many of the soldiers of the army now in Germany are anxious to come home. In the main part General Dickinson's army of occupation is composed of veterans of the fighting line in Europe. They have done their duty in a field of imminent danger, and naturally those of them who have close family ties, and some of the

Opium.

Opium is the dried juice of the white poppy, a flower that grows in many parts of Asia. A few days after the flowers have fallen off the plants men go through the fields in the fields and make little pits in the poppy heads. Out of these pits milky juice oozes, which dries into a brown, sticky paste. Every morning the men go through the fields again and scrape off this paste, which they put into jars. Later on it is made into half-pound balls and then packed for shipment.

Mineral Lake.

A lake near Biggar, Saskatchewan, has been found to be saturated with sodium sulphate, and the deposits under the lake and alongside the edge to be nearly 90 per cent pure sulphate. The mineral is used extensively in the manufacture of sulphuric acid, in photography and other industrial purposes.

others also, are anxious to return to the United States.

There are hundreds of thousands of young men in this country who went through the training camps on this side and who were bitterly disappointed because they were not given an opportunity to serve abroad. It will not take long to find 60,000 anxious ones, ready to sail the seas to replace their homelike brothers on the other side. The soldier who goes abroad, even in this day when the armistice is in force, gets plenty of experience and plenty of opportunities to see things worth while.

Many Are Glad to Return to Europe.

In New York it is said that American veterans of Chateau Thierry, the Argonne and other battlefields who only a few weeks ago accepted their army discharges are daily re-enlisting in considerable numbers. This goes to show that a good many of the men who saw service abroad and perhaps became homesick for America, are now homesick for the other side and wish to go back.

One of the interesting features of the re-enlisting process is the answers which some of the men make to questions which are put to them. It is said that over 30 per cent of the men who want to go back into the army say they desire service because it gives them a chance at vocational education.

A great number of the men who applied for re-enlistment said, "the army makes a man of you." All of this speaks well for the service as a manhood builder, and army authorities in Washington probably will make the most of the praise which has come to the service from the lips of the men who have served and who want to serve again.

Cummings and Hays Busy.

Thomas S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, have their work cut out for them along campaigning lines for the next year plus the odd months which will bring them up to national convention time.

The first work of these two energetic, capable gentlemen is one of harmonizing. Mr. Hays has been in Washington on a harmonizing errand quite recently, and Mr. Cummings also is heading his efforts along a parallel line. It is needless to say that Mr. Hays is not trying to bring about harmony within the Democratic ranks, nor is Mr. Cummings trying to do a like work for the Republicans.

Each one of these chairmen probably hopes in his heart that the efforts of the other to bring harmony will be a dismal failure, and this hope, of course, is not felt in more meanness of spirit, but in the heart desire of each chairman that his party will be helped toward the goal of success by lack of sweetness, light and concord in the ranks of the other party.

There is trouble in the ranks of both of these great parties today as they are represented in the halls of congress. Just prior to the re-convening of congress in special session on the date yet to be fixed the members of congress of both parties in the house will meet in caucus, the majority either to sanction or to veto the slate of officials written at a previous caucus, and the other party to choose its minority four leader and the other officials to which the minority is entitled.

Pass Over Steering Committee.

Recently the Republicans in the house have had trouble because a steering committee was appointed with only a small membership which was not entirely to the liking of a minority of the party members. The steering committee is the body which fixes on legislative policies, and legislative endeavor as outlined in the form of bills. It is an all powerful organization. Some 80 or 90 Republicans in the house maintain that the steering committee of five members which recently was constituted is not representative of the Republican party in its various fields of thought. So it is that an endeavor is to be made to "enlarge and liberalize" the committee when the Republicans of the house meet in caucus.

Mr. Hays, it is said, favors an enlargement of the steering committee to meet the wishes of the Republicans who have declared that the membership in that body represents only one element in the party.

When the caucus is held it finally will be determined whether the influence of the Republican national chairman has been sufficient to bring about the result desired by a large minority of the Republicans and with it the harmony which is necessary for a strenuous political campaign.

Not so much has been made public about Mr. Cummings' work along harmonizing lines, but it is known that he desires above all things that the Democratic minority in the next house shall not appear to be split either on matters of legislation or on what may be called personal matters. There is some opposition among the Democrats in the house to the selection of Champ Clark as floor leader of the minority. Just how strong or how numerous the opponents of Mr. Clark are is not yet definitely known, and it also is a little difficult to find out on just what ground the opposition is based, but in a way the charge of his opponents is that he has not been entirely in accord with the policies of the present administration.

PRESIDENT EBBETS OF BROOKLYN DODGERS BELIEVES HIS TEAM HAS CHANCE FOR FLAG

Manager Robinson, President Ebbets and Pitcher Cadore.

President Charles E. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club has such high hopes of his Dodgers for this season that he is going to give them his closest personal attention. He went with them to the training camp at Jacksonville. Mr. Ebbets is particularly proud of his pitching staff and on it builds his chief hopes.

Sweet on His Pitchers.

In Cadore, Marquand, Pflieger, Cheney, Sherrod Smith, Mammox, Grimes, Mitchell and Heltman he thinks he has a list that outclasses anything in the National league, and he protests strongly at the assumption that the Chicago Cubs, rated highest in pitching material, have anything on his Dodgers. Smith and Mitchell still are in France, but Ebbets hopes that they will report to Uncle Nobby before the pennant race is a month old. Cadore led the Brooklyn pitchers last season, with 10 victories and nine defeats, only four men—Vaughan, Tyler, Cooper and Douglas—exceeding him in effectiveness.

Expected to Win.

Pflieger, who was in the navy all season, is figured to win many games, with Leon Cadore in the same class. Marquand and Cheney, the veterans, are expected to show improvement. Mammox, who has accomplished little or nothing for three years, is a mystery, but Ebbets refuses to lose faith in him. The return of Sherrod Smith, a sterling left-hander, will be the signal for much rejoicing at Ebbets' side.

PING BODIE'S NEW NICKNAME

Because of Fondness for Overtime in Shipyard at Weehawken He Is Dubbed "Soap Hound."

Ping Bodie's energy has won him a new nickname. It has been bestowed upon him by his fellow workers in the Tietgen & Lang shipyards, in Weehawken.

Each one of these chairmen probably hopes in his heart that the efforts of the other to bring harmony will be a dismal failure, and this hope, of course, is not felt in more meanness of spirit, but in the heart desire of each chairman that his party will be helped toward the goal of success by lack of sweetness, light and concord in the ranks of the other party.

WHAT ABOUT ROGERS HORNSBY THIS YEAR?

Fans Asking Each Other If He Will Step Up to Old Gait.

Cardinal Shortstop Given Big Increase in Salary by Jack Hendricks Fell Into Slump—Risky Expected to Get Results.

What about Rogers Hornsby in the 1930 campaign in the National league? National league fans are asking each other whether Rogers will step up to his real gait this coming season or whether he will continue in the slump he suffered last season.

Hornsby joined the Cardinals in 1925, but did not receive very much of a chance to get going. But in 1926 he stepped right out in front. He was the very life of the attack and defense of the team. His general work at shortstop and his batting made him the most talked of player in the circuit, if not in the majors.

The next season he let out another notch and again burned up the league. He batted .327 and finished second to

Rogers Hornsby.

Eddie Rousch of the Cincinnati Reds, who pulled down the batting title.

When the 1928 season started scorching asked, "Where will Hornsby stop?" Rog asked for a big increase in salary and got it. Jack Hendricks took hold of the team that spring. It never will be known exactly whether it was the big pay and publicity of two seasons or his inability to get along with Jack Hendricks that caused Rogers to slump.

Now Hornsby will play under Branch Rickey this coming season. Rickey and Hornsby will get along. Rickey is the kind of a manager who can talk to the youngster and get results.

If Hornsby hits his old stride again next summer—if he takes the lead in batting and in fielding work most fans will blame his year's lapse on Jack Hendricks. Hendricks, being out of the big league again, will not worry over the verdict. Jack undoubtedly has his own views, which are enough for him.

It will be interesting to watch the Cardinal star.

COMMISSION IS EFFICIENT IN HANDLING FISH SPAWN

James Nevins, of the State Conservation Commission, has the following to say regarding the handling of fish for spawning purposes, by the state employees.

The Wisconsin conservation commission, through James Nevins, commissioner of fisheries, requests the Journal to publish the following facts regarding fish spawning:

"A great many people are under the impression that many of the fish caught for spawning purposes die from the effects of the operation after being returned to the water. This is a mistaken notion, as great care is exercised to bruise or injure them. A few die it is true and some seasons the loss is more than others, depending on the length of time they must be held in dummies. What we call dummies are pens constructed with small mesh webbing, to prevent gilling, about 12 feet square and eight feet deep, with stakes at the corners to hold the webbing firm. The bottoms of pens are covered with webbing and sides extending about two feet above the surface of the water to prevent fish from escaping over the top. We usually have a dummy for each day's catch of fish. When operations are at full blast, we catch 3,000 fish a day, of which 400 may be females not more than 10 ready to spawn. These are spawned and the balance placed in the dummy and held until they are in condition. Each day we sort the fish spawn that are ready and return them to the lake. When fish are ripe, the eggs run from them like peas from a bottle.

"The weather conditions have a great deal to do with the time the eggs mature. If the weather is warm, the eggs mature quickly, and during such seasons we have the best success. It is during backward springs, when it is cold and raw, that we experience the greatest difficulties and suffer the most losses. If fish must be held more than six days before releasing their eggs, they begin to what is called 'broke' and the eggs will not loosen and the fish returned to the lake without being spawned.

"Each season we catch from 2,000 to 6,000 fish, of which 400 to 600 are females. The largest lot of which we have record was 100 fish. This large loss due to extremely backward weather conditions which necessitated our holding them in nets much longer than usual."

TO WIN AGAIN

London.—There will be another world war beginning in June, 1926, according to a writer in the British Journal of Astrology. This prophet who signs himself "Shephard," asks for a serious hearing, inasmuch as he claims to have published a year in advance in each case the exact date of the war of 1914 and of the cessation of hostilities.

"The first phase of the next war," he writes, "will begin with Turkey, whose peridy will lead to its final overthrow in 1921-22. This will be the Prussian intrigue will dominate the scene in the near east, affecting Greece, Turkey and Russia. But according to my calculations, the great crisis will not be reached until June, 1926.

"In this great war, which may be regarded as Prussia's counter to the war of 1914-18, the malevolent forces take their rise in Vienna and Berlin, penetrate through the whole of Russia and descend via the Black sea and Turkey in Asia, on to Syria and Palestine.

Another cited victory is predicted by "Shephard."

Two of them were sitting in the boat when it broke away from shore and started to head out into the stream. One of the girls jumped from the boat and came near drowning. The other remained in the boat until it was towed ashore. One young lady of the party rescued the frightened girl in the water and then went after the boat. SODA PRICES TO RAISE UNDER NEW LUXURY TAX

An additional tax of one cent for every ten cents of soda at local fountains after today, when the luxury tax recently passed by congress goes into effect. The tax will be a little higher than a straight ten percent tax, as two sodas at fifteen cents each will draw a tax of four cents.

A tax of ten percent on proprietary sodas will help increase the cost of being sick. Toilet articles draw the same tax while rugs and carpets draw a tax of ten percent on what you pay over $5 per yard.

Another "luxury" tax that will hit the poor after May 1 is that on moving pictures, which requires every person leasing moving picture films for exhibition to pay a monthly tax for the use of the amount his film produces in rentals. This tax, of course, will be added to that already being paid by the public on admissions to moving picture theatres. In many cases it will double the price of movie tickets.

These new taxes are in addition to many others which went into effect on April 1. Prominent among these is the tax of 5 per cent of the total price paid on all articles of jewelry.

"Still other 'luxury' taxes, which affect wealthy people principally, but here and there dig into the pockets of the poor, have been paid ever since the revenue act was approved by the president in March. These include the following percentages of the total prices:

Automobiles, 5 per cent.
Automobile accessories, 5 per cent.
Musical instruments and records, 5 per cent.
Sporting goods, 10 per cent.
Chewing gum, 3 per cent.
Candy, 5 per cent.
Cameras, 10 per cent.
Photographic films and plates, 5 per cent.
Firearms and ammunition, 10 per cent.
Hunting knives, 5 per cent.
Portable electric fans, 5 per cent.
Thermos bottles, 5 per cent.
Cigar and cigarette holders, humidors, smoking stands, 10 per cent.
Livery uniforms, 10 per cent.
Hunting or riding habits, 20 per cent.
Clothing and furs, 10 per cent.
Toilet soaps, 3 per cent.
Pleasure boats, 5 per cent.
Paintings and statuary, 10 per cent.

CLARK COUNTY PLANS TO BUILD $300,000 ASYLUM

Neillsville Times.—One of the most important actions of the county board in many years was one which approved of the resolution to build a county insane asylum.

The sentiment to be a general feeling that this work should be delayed until there was a reduction in the cost of building material. However, it was pointed out that there was a relief in sight for some time from the prevailing high prices and that if the county was ever to build its own insane asylum that the project should no longer be delayed. It was also shown that there was a very grave possibility of the state condemning the present county poor farm buildings, in which event new buildings would have to be built. It was therefore deemed advisable, and will no doubt be included in the new asylum proposition, to locate the county poor on the same farm with the insane asylum. The present county farm is a very valuable piece of land and will sell readily at a high price and this selling price will offset a portion of the purchase price of the new farm, at least.

It was also shown that Clark county now has in the neighborhood of 100 insane patients at the various hospitals in the state and it was therefore decided to build the new asylum with a capacity of 200 patients. The additional room will be taken up by patients from other counties, according to the promise of the state board of control.

The new asylum will cost completed in the neighborhood of $300,000. The state requires that it be located on nothing less than a section of land so as to give room for farming activities. It must also be a switch can be run into the grounds. The resolution as adopted by the board provides that the building of the new asylum must be started not later than 1920. There will now be considerable rivalry between the various cities and villages of the county for the location of the new building. Owen and Neillsville are already after it.

RUNAWAY TEAM WRECKS AUTOMOBILE AND WAGON

Neillsville Times.—On Thursday afternoon Dr. C. F. Bachmann and Harry Carl had close calls to very serious injury when the car in which they were riding was smashed into by a runaway team. Harry Carl had driven Dr. Bachmann in the car to the home of A. A. Huckstead to call on Mrs. Vine. In backing out of the Huckstead yard the rear of the car was partly into the road when the runaway team came along. The team was traveling north and one of the horses struck the car full force. The impetus of the running horse was so great that the car was completely turned over and a remarkable thing was that the complete somersault over the car and pinned beneath it. Dr. Bachmann was caught in the rear seat of the car, while young Carl was pinned beneath the steering wheel. Both men were extricated after considerable difficulty, and while both were suffering no severe injury, which is remarkable considering the condition of the auto. It was a complete wreck, being smashed beyond repair.

WAUSAU PEOPLE OBJECT TO CARRYING OWN ICE

Wausau citizens rose up in arms recently when an ice company of that city announced to their patrons that through the high cost of labor they would discontinue the delivery of ice this summer, but would have sell it on the cash and carry basis.

The idea of carrying home a couple of hundred pounds of ice a distance of two or three miles every morning evidently does not appeal to the people up there and according to the Wausau papers the ice subject is the principal topic of discussion. Another ice company has announced that they will deliver this year with a little advance in price, and claim they have a supply which will satisfy the demand.

FORMER NURSE MARRIED

Nekoosa Tribune.—Clotta Marie Morgan, daughter of Mr. Nelson Morgan, of the town of Fort Edwards, and Clarence Grode, son of F. X. Grode, owner of Grode's Recreation Parlor, were married at Chicago last Tuesday at the home of the groom's aunt, Mrs. L. von Gilton. The bride took up the nurses' training course at the Grand Rapids hospital and left several weeks ago to enter the Cook County hospital at Chicago. The groom is probably the most popular of the young fellows in town. They will make their home in Nekoosa. The Nekoosa Tribune joins the hosts of friends in wishing the young people unbounded happiness in the years to come.

CHINESE GARDENS ARE TO BE ENLARGED

Hig Lung and Toy Fung of Chicago, financial backers of the Mather Chinese truck gardens, were in this city this week, enroute to Mather, where they inspected the gardens and perfected plans for the coming season's planting. Eight hundred acres have been purchased by the above mentioned gentlemen and the Chinese gardens are now a permanent business enterprise. Extended projects are even at this early date on foot, for enlarging and varying last season's work. A new foreman to take up the work of Toy Fung, who died of Spanish influenza in the near future. Toy's methods of gardening are to be continued and his plans perfected so far as possible. Truck gardening on drained marsh lands is practically a new Wisconsin industry and bids fair to become very successful.—Tamah Journal.

Nellisville Times—One of the most important actions of the county in many years was the one which approved of the resolution to build a county insane asylum.

There seemed to be a general feeling that this work should be delayed until there was a reelection in the case of building material. However, it was pointed out that there was no relief in sight for some time from the prevailing high prices and that if the county was over to build its own insane asylum that the project should no longer be delayed. It was also shown that there was a very grave possibility of the state condemning the present county poor farm buildings, in which event new buildings would have to be built there. It was therefore deemed advisable, and will no doubt be included in the new asylum proposition, to locate the county poor on the same farm with the insane asylum. The present county farm is a very valuable piece of land and will sell readily at a high price and this selling price will offset a portion of the purchase price of the new farm, at least.

It was also shown that Clark county now has in the neighborhood of 400 insane patients at the various hospitals in the state and it was therefore decided to build the new asylum with a capacity of 200 patients. The additional room will be taken up by patients from other counties, according to the promise of the state board of control.

The new asylum will cost completed in the neighborhood of $300,000. The state requires that it be located on nothing less than a section of land so as to give room for farming activities. It must also be located near a railroad so that a switch can be run into the grounds. The resolution as adopted by the board provides that the building of the new asylum must be started not later than 1920. There will now be considerable rivalry between the various cities and villages of the county for the location of the new building. Given and Nellisville are already after it.

Strangler Ed. Lewis, who in private life was Bob Frederick, of Neokosa, but who has won fame in the wrestling world and is now considered among the championship contenders, was scheduled to meet Elmer Sanders, a Wisconsin wrestler at Rhinelander last Saturday night. Sanders is heralded as state champion. Lewis was formerly a resident of Rhinelander and had not been back there since becoming a champion wrestler.

A man may have sense enough to select a good cantaloupe, a good automobile and a good egg. But that won't keep him from falling down when he tries to select a good wife.

Of course, men are all afraid of their wives. But here is a tip in case you want to try matrimony a second time. They tell us that a man hasn't much to fear from a woman who has a jelly wobble of feet when she laughs.

Runaway Team Wrecks Automobile and Wagon

Nellisville Times—On Thursday afternoon Dr. C. F. Bachmann and Harry Carl had close calls to very serious injury when the car in which they were riding was smashed into by a runaway team. Harry Carl had driven Dr. Bachmann in the Carl auto to the home of A. A. Huckstead to call on Mrs. Vine. In backing out of the Huckstead yard the rear of the car was partly into the road when the runaway team came along. The team was traveling north and one of the horses struck the car full force. The impetus of the running horse was so great that the car was completely turned over and a remarkable thing was that the horses had seemingly turned a complete somersault over the car and were pinned beneath it. Dr. Bachmann was caught in the rear seat of the car, while young Carl was pinned beneath the steering wheel. Both men were extricated after considerable difficulty, and while both were badly shaken up they seemed to have suffered no severe injury, which is a remarkable considering the condition of the auto. It was a complete wreck, being smashed beyond repair.

FORMER NURSE MARRIED

Nekoosa Tribune—Cletta Marie Morgan, daughter of Mrs. Nelson Marceau, of the town of Port Edwards, and Clarence Grode, son of F. X. Grode, owner of Grode's Ricegrove Farm, were married at Chicago last Tuesday at the home of the groom's aunt, Mrs. L. von Diltz. The bride took up the nurses' training course at the Grand Rapids hospital and left several weeks ago to enter the Cook County hospital at Chicago. The groom is probably the most popular of the young fellows in town. They will make their home in Nekoosa. The Nekoosa Tribune joins the hosts of friends in wishing the young people unbounded happiness in the years to come.

Any mother can tell you that a small boy can not live on three meals a day. A liberal supply of bread, and butter, cake, pickles, apples, bananas, popcorn and candy between is all that keeps him from starving to death.

When a fool man gets into trouble he goes to a woman for sympathy. And he merely acquires more trouble.

New Styles for the New Figure

YOUNG America helped do a big man's job. It isn't cocky about it—just conscious of its strength and power.

Your young man is full of self-reliance and confidence. He knows better than ever what he wants—and he knows values.

The Old Models Won't Do He's going to be fussier about his clothes. The old styles and the old models don't meet his new moods and his new body. The military life did a lot of things to backs and chests and waist lines—to the carriage of head and shoulders.

The HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER through its service in military uniforms saw these changes taking place. It foresaw that mere revision of old models wouldn't do. It created new models to meet the new conditions—to set off the fine physique developed in the camps.

And New Spring Styles, to express the new spirit of determination and vigor and punch.

Why shouldn't a man be proud of his spirit and his body? Why shouldn't he have clothes to set them off?

The HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER is proud to be the Young Men's House—it's a house of young men. Young in spirit and growing.

In the last four years this house has doubled its business—only because it senses the demands and desires of young men, and always delivers value.

You can go to your Kuppenheimer dealer and surely find the thing you are looking for in choice fabrics, fine patterns and real tailoring.

You expect to pay a little more for such clothes. It's not what you pay but the clothes service you get that counts.

New Styles for the New Figure

YOUNG America helped do a big man's job. It isn't cocky about it—just conscious of its strength and power.

Your young man is full of self-reliance and confidence. He knows better than ever what he wants—and he knows values.

The Old Models Won't Do

He's going to be fussier about his clothes. The old styles and the old models don't meet his new moods and his new body. The military life did a lot of things to backs and chests and waist lines—to the carriage of head and shoulders.

The HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER through its service in military uniforms saw these changes taking place. It foresaw that mere revision of old models wouldn't do. It created new models to meet the new conditions—to set off the fine physique developed in the camps.

French Peasants Are Undismayed

By LLOYD ALLEN, Special Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union.)

MISSOISSON, FRANCE.—You would expect to find the peasants of France a gloomy lot as they work their way across country back to shattered homes. Nothing seemed to dismay them. They filtered from their hives in the south of France in a thin, ragged line—always smiling. They have only one aim in life: They want to get back to their lands and they are willing to suffer privation in order to get re-established in their broken-down homes.

There is no doubt that much needless suffering was caused by the eagerness of the peasants to get back to their homes before the French government had fully organized its relief machinery. Each peasant, however, knew that the 1919 growing season, in order to be productive of fair results, must begin with the spring plowing in February in the bitter weather of January and early February in order to get some kind of a shelter ready in which he could sleep and eat, before his days were given over to work on the land and the production of food.

Most of the refugees were the very old or very young. During the early weeks of the peace conference there were very few soldiers returning to the land. Eighty per cent of the French army consisted of men from the farms, and the demobilization rate was comparatively slow.

At Soissons an American organization, with a French name, was rendering valuable assistance to the people. This committee, which was known as the Comité Américain pour les Régions Dévastées de la France, was headed by Mrs. A. M. Dike of Baltimore as president and Miss Anne Morgan of New York as vice president, had branches in 20 surrounding villages where supplies were being sent out even away or sold, depending on the financial condition of the farmers. If the returning man or woman had money with which to buy goods, a charge of "cost plus 10 per cent" was made. The 10 per cent profit went to the French man or woman running the store. Funds to conduct the organization came from America and were raised by popular subscription.

Cutry, a Typical Village.

Not far from Soissons, which is peppered with machine gun fire and shattered by big shell explosions, is the little hillside town of Cutry, a typical destroyed village, with only about 10 per cent of the houses remaining habitable. The American women of the committee peddle supplies in Cutry once or twice a week. Twice a week a woman once or twice a committee visits the place. In Cutry 24 peasants live with the most cheerful outlook on life. Twelve of them sleep in a big cave on the hillside. Rough boards have been placed in the cave entrance to keep out the wind. Inside, in the dark, a small stove serves to keep the place fairly warm.

One old woman, one of the happiest creatures in the world apparently, was living alone in one section of the unoccupied stable, where she kept her hen and four chickens and a two-wheeled cart, she had fled before the advancing German army with the donkey and cart and four chickens, had kept them for four years in the south of France, and on returning to Cutry rode back in style in the donkey cart.

Down the street, in a house that had suffered severely from shell fire, were Mme. and M. Blanchard, old Blanchard, a veteran of the German war, was bent and feeble. His eighty years of life on a small French farm had left him almost doubled up with the infirmities of age. His face had softened into a perpetual smile. Most of his teeth were gone. Mme. Blanchard, also very old, was more sprightly. The old couple had one joy in life besides being back home again after four years as refugees. That joy was a big, sleek white cat. They had a son in the army, and while waiting for his return were patching up the house and refurbishing it. Of the several hundred people that had lived in Cutry, the Blanchards were two of twenty-four that had returned.

They picked up pieces of timbers from shell-struck houses for fuel. They worked by day patching up their house and slept in the cave at night. The American women of Soissons kept an eye on the old folks; brought some cigarettes for the old man every now and then and saw to it that they had food enough to keep them going.

It was always a red terror day in Cutry when the committee's auto truck appeared loaded with supplies. Driven by a typical American girl, the little truck would swing briskly up the village street, would take the hairpin turns leading up the big hill toward the church and would draw up with a flourish in front of the cave dwellings in the old quarry. A big shrill-toned bell had been mounted on a pole near the spot where the men chauldise with the truck was loaded was to be sold. The moment the young woman truck driver rang the bell 24 refugees dropped their tools and came hurrying up the street, anxious to secure some badly needed goods. If they lacked money and really needed stuff no difficulty was placed in the peasant's way to secure the materials. While the bartering and exchanges went on the young American woman chattered French with the peasants, exchanged cigarettes and generally helped promote the peace of good cheer.

So there were many bright spots such as this through the 6,000 square miles of devastated France. In all the ravaged territory—which will bear the scars of war for generations—the job of reconstruction was starting with all the atmosphere of a holiday, notwithstanding the sinister background of disrupted roofs, crumbling walls, shell-marked streets and ruins of buildings. What did it matter that France had half a million houses struck by shells, with a quarter of a million reduced to rubble heaps? The war was over and the big task of rebuilding was starting with an impetus that demonstrated the farmer's implicit faith in the future.

Two and a quarter billion dollars' worth of household goods in all France had been destroyed, according to official estimates made soon after the armistice signing, when the first calculations indicated that France's war damage for actual destruction of property would amount to something like thirteen billion dollars for everything. As the statisticians check over their figures there will probably be some alterations made on the grand total of thirteen billions. At present that item stands as the probable loss in France, to property in lands overrun by the Germans.

Blerancourt not far from Soissons about 50 per cent destroyed, is just an illustration on the long French indemnity bill against Germany. Here the Germans had full sway until they were driven out in the last few weeks of the war. Now the French families are beginning to get back into Blerancourt and begin life over again.

One of the first to arrive was a French soldier honorably discharged. He was faced by terrible difficulties. He had nothing but his uniform, and that had to be returned to the government. But the government is repairing a war-damaged home and his problem of getting a new home is being solved. The French government is going to give adequate aid for the whole period of reconstruction. About $100 an acre for deserted fields, and a large part of necessary expenses for the time and work required for getting house and home together. But this money, ample as it will be when finally received, is not readily available. Forms must be filled out, checked and approved, and so forth, before the money is actually paid. The

She c-o-u-l-d make it if she would hold that 10-model skirt. She hesitated. The conductor's hand was on the rope. What was the difference in this day of Annette Kellerman bathing suits and war bloomers? She hoisted.

Breathing hard, she took her seat. Some one sat down beside her. What was hubby doing on the car that time

Convenient Wall Switch.

A wall switch with a pull chain has been devised for use about hospitals and similar institutions to enable patients to call a nurse with the least effort and greatest safety. There is no possibility of the patient being shocked, which has occurred with the older forms of push button. A linen cord placed within easy reach of the patient is used to pull the switch "on," the cord being attached to a short piece of chain, which extends through a hole in the plate and is attached to a projection on a pushbutton. A pushbutton placed above the hole extends through a plate and is used by the nurse to push the switch "off."

Convenient Wall Switch.

A wall switch with a pull chain has been devised for use about hospitals and similar institutions to enable patients to call a nurse with the least effort and greatest safety. There is no possibility of the patient being shocked, which has occurred with the older forms of push button. A linen cord placed within easy reach of the patient is used to pull the switch "on," the cord being attached to a short piece of chain, which extends through a hole in the plate and is attached to a projection on a pushbutton. A pushbutton placed above the hole extends through a plate and is used by the nurse to push the switch "off."

French Peasants Are Undismayed

ONLY CHIEF BY CUTTER AND HIS GUARDIAN

Their aim in life is to get back on their own land and they face the future smiling

By LLOYD ALLEN, Special Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union.)

MISSONS, FRANCE.—You would expect to find the peasants of France a gloomy lot as they work their way across country back to shattered homes. Nothing seemed to dismay them. They filtered from their hovels in the south of France in a thin, ragged line—always smiling. They were facing the future cheerfully. They have only one great aim in life: They want to get back to their hands and they are willing to suffer privation in order to get re-established in their broken-up homes. "They are numerous, numbering more than two million. I have seen and talked to hundreds in the devastated country around Soissons, where scores of towns are wiped off the map, and found not a single soul staring life over again with a groan."

There is no doubt that much needless suffering was caused by the eagerness of the peasants to get back to their homes before the French government had fully organized its relief machinery. Each peasant, however, knew that the 1919 growing season, in order to be productive of full results, must begin with the spring plowing in February with the disappearance of the snows. Each family had made great effort to get back to his land in the bitter winter of January and early February in order to get some kind of a shelter ready in which he could sleep and eat, before his days were given over to work on the land and the production of food.

Most of the refugees were the very old or very young. During the early weeks of the peace conference there were very few soldiers returning to the land. Eighty per cent of the French army consisted of men from the farms, and the demobilization was comparatively slow. At Soissons an American volunteer, with a French name, was rendering valuable assistance in the people. This committee, which was known as the Comité American pour les Régions Dévastées de la France with Mrs. A. M. Dike of Baltimore as president and Miss Anne Morgan of New York as vice president, had branches in 20 surrounding villages where supplies were being either given away or sold, depending on the financial condition of the farmers. If the returning man or woman had money with which to buy goods, a charge of "best plus 10 per cent" was made. The 10 per cent profit went to the French man or woman running the store. Funds to conduct the organization came from America and were raised by popular subscription.

Cutry, a Typical Village.

Not far from Soissons, which is peppered with machine gun fire and shattered by big shell explosions, is the little hillside town of Cutry, a typical devastated village, with only about 10 per cent of the houses remaining habitable. The American women of the committee peddle supplies in Cutry once or twice a week. Twice a week a woman doctor from the committee visits the place. In Cutry 24 peasants live with the most cheerful outlook on life. Twelve of them sleep in a big cave on the hillside. Rough boards have been placed in the cave entrance to keep out the wind. Inside, in the dark, a small stove serves to keep the place fairly warm.

One old woman, one of the happiest creatures in this world apparently, was living alone in one section of the cavern. Adjoining her temporary home was an improvised stable, where she kept her donkey and four chickens and a two-wheeled cart. She had fled before the advancing German army with the donkey and cart and four chickens; had kept them for four years in the south of France, and on returning to Cutry rode back in style in the donkey cart.

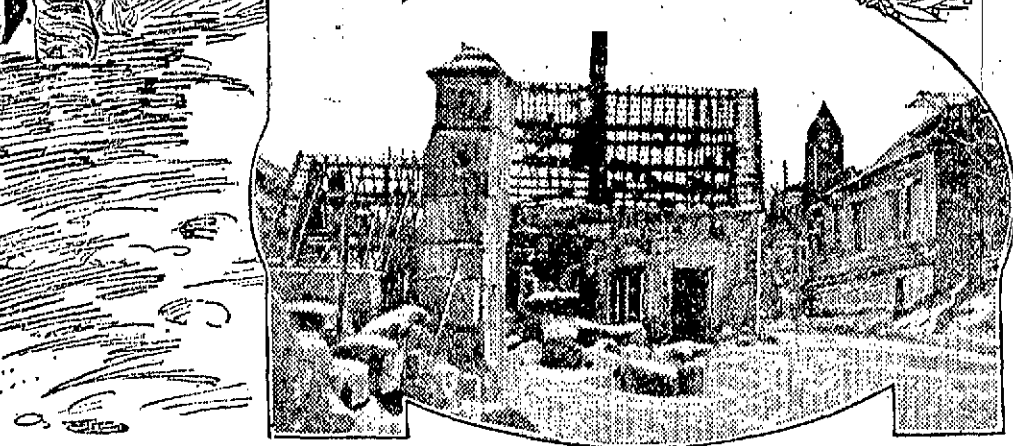

Down the street, in a house that had suffered severely from shell fire, were Mme. and M. Blanchard. Old Blanchard, a veteran of the German war, was bent and feeble. His eighty years of life on a small French farm had left him almost doubled up with the infirmities of age. His face had softened into a perpetual smile. Most of his teeth were gone. Mme. Blanchard, also very old, was more sprightly. The old couple had one joy in life besides being back home again after four years as refugees. That joy was a big, sleek white cat. They had a son in the army, and while waiting for his return were patching up the house and refurbishing it. Of the several hundred people that had lived in Cutry, the Blanchards were two of twenty-four that had returned.

They picked up pieces of linens from shell-struck houses for fuel. They worked by day patching up their house and slept in the cave at night.

THE BLANCHARDS OF CUTRY, WHO SLEPT IN A CAVE WHILE REPAIRING THEIR HOME

RUINED CHURCH AND HOMES OF CUTRY, NORTHERN FRANCE

The American women of Soissons kept an eye on the old folks; brought some cigarettes for the old men every now and then and saw to it that they had food enough to keep them going.

It was always a red letter day in Cutry when the committee's auto truck appeared loaded with supplies. Driven by a typical American girl, the little truck would swing briskly up the village street, would take the halting turns leading up the big hill toward the church and would draw up in the churchyard in front of the cave dwellings in the old quarry. A big shell-torn bell had been mounted on a pole near the spot where the incense burner with which the truck was loaded was to be used. The moment the young woman truck driver rang the bell 24 refugees dropped their tasks and came hurrying up the street, anxious to secure some badly needed goods. If they lacked money and really needed stuff so difficult was placed in the peasant's way to secure the materials. While the bartering and exchanges went on the young American woman chattered French with the peasants, exchanged jokes and generally helped promote the gospel of good cheer.

Red Tape Causes Suffering.

So there were many bright spots such as this through the 5,000 square miles of devastation in France. In all the ravaged territory—which will bear the scars of war for generations—the job of reconstruction was starting with all the atmosphere of a holiday, notwithstanding the shabby background of shattered roofs, crumbling walls, shell-cracked streets and ruined public buildings.

What did it matter that France had half a million houses struck by shells, with a quarter of a million reduced to rubble heaps? The war was over and the big task of rebuilding was starting with an impetus that demonstrated the farmer's implicit faith in the future.

Two and a quarter billion dollars' worth of household goods in all France had been destroyed, according to official estimates made soon after the armistice signing, when the first calculations indicated that France's war damage for actual destruction of property would amount to something like thirteen billion dollars for everything. As the statistics came over their figures there was probably some alteration made on the grand total of thirteen billions. At present that item stands as the probable loss in France, to property in lands overrun by the Germans.

Bienancourt not far from Soissons about 50 per cent destroyed, is just an item on the long French indemnity bill against Germany. Here the Germans had full sway until they were driven out in the last few weeks of the war. Now the French farmers are beginning to get back into Bienancourt and begin life over again.

One of the first to arrive was a French soldier, honorably discharged. He was faced by terrible difficulties. He had nothing but his uniform, and that had to be returned to the government. But the government is standing behind this soldier in his problem of repairing a war-damaged home and life. The French government is going to give adequate aid for the whole period of reconstruction. About $100 an acre for deserted fields, and a large part of necessary expenses for the time and work required for getting house and home together. But this money, ample as it will be when finally received, is not readily available. Forms must be filled out, checked and approved, and so forth, before the money is actually paid. The

STORIES OF AMERICAN CITIES

Does This Queer Pueblo Ghost Cough and Snore?

PUEBLO, COLO.—This bustling little burg is building a new city hall and auditorium. It is under construction and will soon be finished. Until now the city commissioners have been pretty well satisfied with the building. Now they're worried. And all because of Uncle Jimmy, the night watchman, who has reported to them and to the police that the building is haunted.

Uncle Jimmy says that every night he makes his rounds he hears the ghost. He says sometimes it makes sounds just exactly like a man coughing. At other times he would swear it was a man snoring. Time and time again he has tried to chase down the cough or the snore by ear, but has never succeeded. In the daytime, hiding place he might have overlooked at night. He has searched every nook and corner in the big building. Not a sign of the ghost can he find. But still the coughing and the snoring go on every night.

Everybody knows it's terribly unlucky to have a new building haunted. It's had enough to have an old, tumble-down, ramshackle structure ghost-ridden. But when it's a new, up-to-date city hall and auditorium that is afflicted with a ghost the thing is serious.

Moreover, this is no ordinary ghost. Ordinary ghosts are seen, not heard. And if Pueblo must endure a coughing, snoring ghost in its new city hall and auditorium, can it be made a matter of civic pride and used for advertising purposes to attract tourists?

This is why the city commissioners of Pueblo are worried.

Uncle Jimmy says, he has gone carefully over the structure looking for some hiding place he might have overlooked at night. He has searched every nook and corner in the big building. Not a sign of the ghost can he find. But still the coughing and the snoring go on every night.

DON'T BUY ASPIRIN IN A "PILL" BOX

You must say "Bayer." Never ask for merely Aspirin tablets. The name "Bayer" means you are getting the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," proven safe by millions of people. Don't buy Aspirin tablets in a pill box. Insist on getting the Bayer package with the safety "Bayer Cross" on both package and on tablets. No other way! Beware of counterfeit! Only recently a Brooklyn manufacturer was sent to the penitentiary for flooding the country with talcum powder tablets, which he claimed to be Aspirin.

Exquisite Pathos in Request of Crimped Lad Unable to Realize Extent of His Misfortune.

Alexander Grant of the Episcopal academy told me recently a touching little story of the late Julius Meyer, the manufacturer of chemicals, writer "Gerard," in the Philadelphia Ledger. Mr. Meyer was in the habit of visiting the hospitals in the weeks before Christmas to ascertain what the patients would like in the way of a remembrance from Santa.

At the Children's hospital he came upon a tiny child who had lost both feet when the cars ran over him. "What would you like, my little man?" "Come close," said the child, "and bend down low so's I can whisper in your ear."

The good old man approached and bent over.

The child whispered to him, "A pair of roller skates."

It was too much for the old man. He broke down and cried like a baby.

This True Story Needs No Frills in the Telling

DENVER.—Here's a true story that needs no frills in the telling. Miss Doris Heller, a student nurse in St. Luke's hospital training school, started on a visit to her sister, Mrs. P. Broquet, in Norton, Kan. On her way to the depot she made a purchase at the Dunfries & Fisher department store. To kill time she went up to the twentieth story of the observation tower and out on the balcony. The balcony on the seventeenth floor projects a few feet further than this; below the seventeenth floor balcony there is a sheer drop of 200 feet to the roof of an adjoining building.

Miss Heller lost her balance and fell headlong. She struck the rail of the seventeenth floor balcony first and fell inside the rail. Had she struck two feet to the right, she would have gone on down. Every bone in both feet was broken and her spine was fractured. She lost consciousness. Presently she came to and began calling for help. This was at noon Saturday. In the course of time, in dragging herself around to the south side to escape the rain, she discovered a door leading to a storeroom. She tore the weather strip from the bottom and beat on the glass panels. Saturday night and all day Sunday she kept this up.

Monday at 7:45 a. m. Joseph Taylor, the electrician, went to the twentieth floor to fix the elevator. He heard a faint tapping, but thought it was made by carpenter working below. He descended to the eighteenth floor and tapping drew his attention. Thereupon he discovered Miss Heller lying on the balcony. She was wet, dirty and bedraggled, but conscious, calm and even cheerful. Taylor and two porters carried her in, wrapped her in blankets and fed her. Then she was taken to Mercy hospital and put in plaster and bandages from head to foot. Dr. Haskell Cohen said she might recover.

Now you see why this story needs no frills.

This Lucky Doughboy Has the Whole A. E. F. Faded

NEW YORK.—How these special correspondents and the Associated Press do manage a good story—like this of a private who came home the other day on a liner that arrived here! Anyway, here's the very the correspondent of a Chicago newspaper sent out the story.

"Two Illinois and one Michigan man returned today with brides. The Michigan man, Private Russell M. Everett of Grand Rapids, returned not only with a bride, but with a pair of gold cuff links personally presented to him by King George and with the memory of having been a guest of President Wilson and the kings of England and Italy.

"Private Everett wears five wound stripes, and when he was assigned as orderly to Brigadier General Hart, American commander of the district of Paris, his wound stripes attracted President Wilson's attention. Learning the history of the Michigan man, President Wilson announced that while he was in Europe Private Everett would be his guest.

"Surprised at seeing a private in President Wilson's suite, King George inquired about Everett, and on learning his story, announced that Everett was his guest while in England. The Grand Rapids boy was the only private who attended the now famous gold-plated dinner to Mr. Wilson in England and on his departure from the British Isles he was presented with a pair of cuff links by King George. He accompanied Mr. Wilson to Italy, and while there was a guest in the palace of King Victor Emmanuel.

"The Associated Press said that Everett was a veteran of the Mexican campaign, was twenty years old, that his bride was French and that he belonged to Watertown, N. Y.

Not a word about how, when or where Everett got his five wounds! Not a word about his life in the Murat mansion in Paris or Buckingham palace in London, or King Victor Emmanuel's palace in Rome! Not a word about his French bride—how he met and courted and married her, who she is and what she looks like!

As for Grand Rapids and Watertown—well, there's glory enough for both.

Montrose Thought Coxcomb Peak Was Uncompahgre

MONTROSE, COLO.—Colorado is laughing at the capital city of Montrose county and it has a right to laugh. The joke is on Montrose and there is no use trying to get out from under it. It's this way: For more than 30 years the people here have been boasting of Uncompahgre peak and pointing it out with pride on the southern horizon. Uncompahgre, you know, is quite a peak. It is known as "Monarch of the Southwest," and is the fifth highest in the state, rising to 14,300 feet—higher than Longs, Pikes, Evans and most of the other well-known peaks.

About two years ago a new citizen came to town. He didn't seem to be particularly impressed with Uncompahgre when it was pointed out to him. He asked what the snow-crowned summit off to the southwest was. He was told it had no name and didn't amount to much. He said it looked good to him. He began writing to the government and asking questions. About this time he began advancing the theory that "Uncompahgre" was Coxcomb peak and that the unnamed snowy summit was the real Uncompahgre.

Postmaster A. F. Reeves, who has lived in the valley 30 years, would not listen to him. Neither would County Surveyor W. H. Fleming. There were scores of other old-timers who were almost willing to stake their lives on Uncompahgre. But the newcomer stuck to it till the United States geological survey proved beyond question that "Uncompahgre" was Coxcomb and that the snowy summit "with no name" was the honest-to-goodness Uncompahgre.

Delightful Surprise Party for William's Family

HOBOKEN, N. J.—There's a family in Quincey, Ill. which can boast a surprise rather out of the ordinary. The newly wedded Mrs. William Rushmeyer, bride of Private Rushmeyer, landed here alone on a transport. She came out down on a steamer and was in charge of the Red Cross attendant, whose duty it is to take care of brides.

Mrs. Rushmeyer is English, is seventeen years old, and pretty and dainty. She showed the address of her future mother and father in law. It is Fourteenth street, Quincey. When asked why William wasn't along she said:

"I don't know just when William will be over. I get a letter from him the day I left Liverpool. He told me he was in good health, but couldn't get away just yet, and that I was to go right along and meet the folks."

"Are you a little timid about meeting your new parents?" she was asked. "Well, a little bit," she said; "but, then, my folks liked William, so I suppose his will like me." Further conversation about William resulted in this: "After I got the letter from William I met two friends who had been staying in the guardhouse with him, and they said that William had still two weeks to serve. It was the first I knew of it. William is so reticent."

William, it seemed, was unavailably detained in a guardhouse serving out a sentence for an "absent without leave" of ten days which he spent with his wife.

And William will get home eventually.
